5-STAR HOTEL

GRAND HÔTEL DU PALAIS ROYAL

History and modernity

Standing opposite the Louvre, the Palais Royal is an institution, a landmark in the history of France, an essential part of Parisian life. At its gate is a single hotel, elegant and discreet: the Grand Hôtel du Palais Royal, whose 68 rooms and suites are housed in an outstanding 18th century building. Just a step away from the Palais Royal Gardens, the Comédie Française and the Tuileries Gardens, this setting designed by architect Pierre-Yves Rochon expresses all the charm, refinement and subtlety of Paris, its classical luxury and modernity.

In a symphony of fabrics and wallpapers by the greatest names, artists' works and made-to-measure furniture, each room has its own soul. Many offer wonderful views of the City of Light, while the two suites – the Parisian-apartment-style Palais Royal and Panoramic on the seventh floor – provide a unique view of the capital from their terrace. To round off the 5-star experience, the hotel has a Carita spa and a restaurant. Designed as a winter garden, the Lulli features the sublime cuisine of chef Jean-Yves Bournot, who trained with some of the greatest names in French gastronomy, including Thierry Marx and Yannick Alléno. Refinement and proficiency are the watchwords at this royal hotel. ■
